A school is more than just a building; it is a spirit, a spirit created by the students, faculty, and community. Charles B. Aycock High School is a great school.

For four years the area has believed in this greatness. Accreditation by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges was a material recognition of this fact.

Much work was required to receive the accreditation; this work was not spur-of-the-moment work; it began before the construction of the physical plant of Aycock in the minds of officials who were planning the school. They knew this would be "the school" of Wayne County.

Aycock's success spurred the county's second consolidated school of the southern county.

The Spirit of Being Accredited . . .

Books, books, everywhere, and every one to be read. The average student checked out 22 books during the school year. A certain number was required for accreditation.

Study became more concentrated as the tempo and difficulty of classes increased. Gail Brown begins the work of another day.

A great amount of equipment was required for accreditation. Jerry Wayne Waddell studies a distillation process by experimenting with it.

More Equipment, Rising Spirit

Backstage tension mounts as the group discusses things to "be sure to remember." The accreditation team praised the Dramacons highly for their work. In this scene Dottie Alley, Anne Lewis, Ronnie Thompson, Andy Beamon, and Jerry Waddell are preparing for Pride and Prejudice.

Trying Harder

Buddy Merritt crouches low and "eyes" the basketball goal. The reviewing team suggested the continuance of the strong physical education program.

Endurance, understanding, and strength are required of athletes and coaches. Good school spirit is "must" for accreditation.

The philosophy and objectives committee was one of the most vital for accreditation. Committee chairman Mr. W. D. Joyner holds the accreditation plaque and the committee report as the other committee members watch. They are Mrs. Virginia Wilson, Mrs. Lenore Cox, Mrs. Ruth Thornton, and Mr. Rhelma Boykin.

A spirit, the spirit of being accredited, is often seen in the eyes and actions of students. As they return home on the school bus, one can see the enthusiasm and spirit of "the individual."

Being a Part of One

"Travel, and you learn more," they said. Aycocock students did. Pat Smith was among those who, through all difficulties, had a "blast."

"Why do they come out now?"

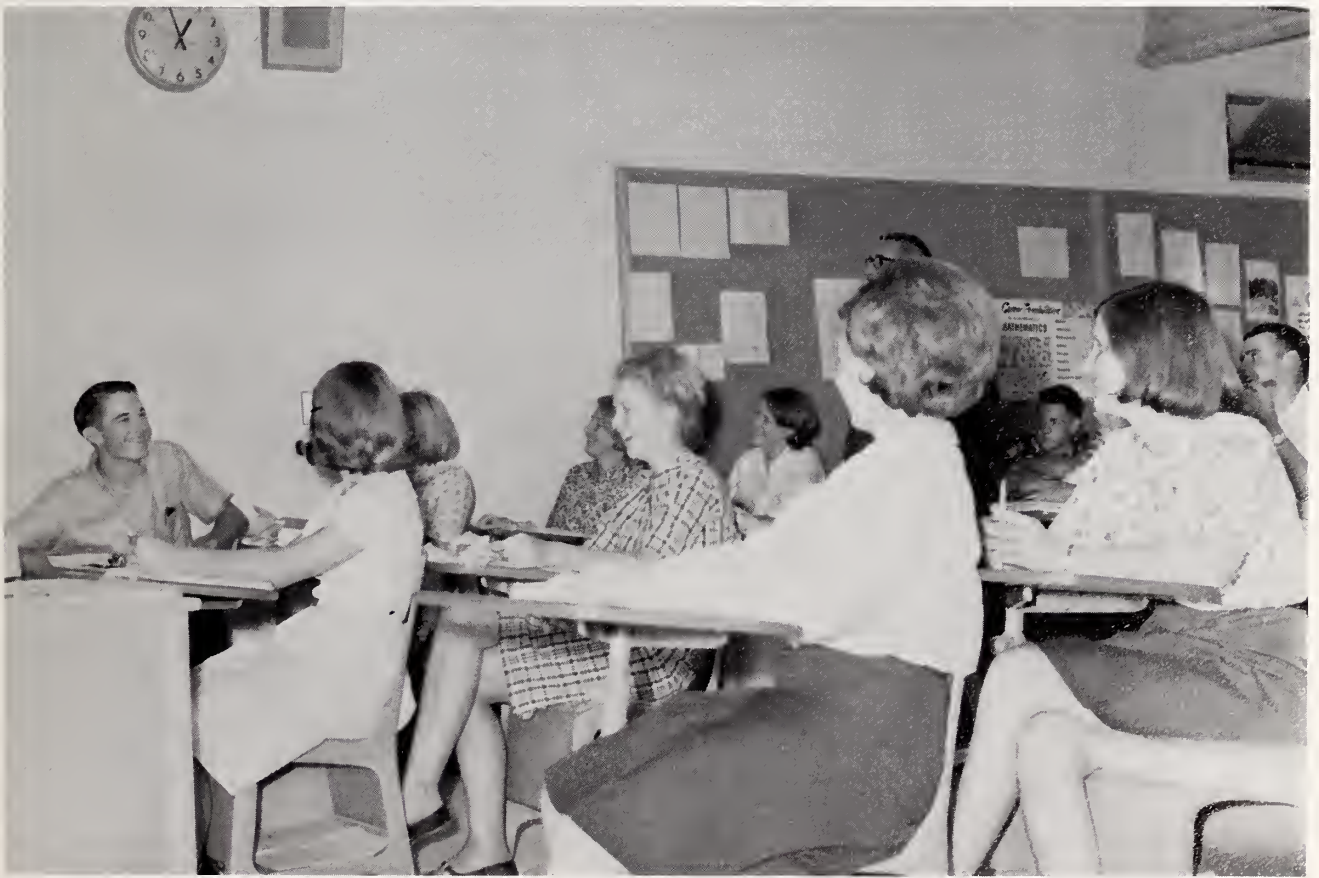

"Those boys will see everything!"

"But what difference does it make? I'm going to New York!"

Thrilling, Enormous Whole

Mixed emotions were revealed by students as they heard the news of accreditation. From some rooms there was no sound when the announcement came. Other rooms were wild with excitement. It seemed "ages" since the evaluation reviewing team visited and since Principal Jerry D. Paschal had left for Kentucky to learn the decision of the organization.

Principal Sets High Goals

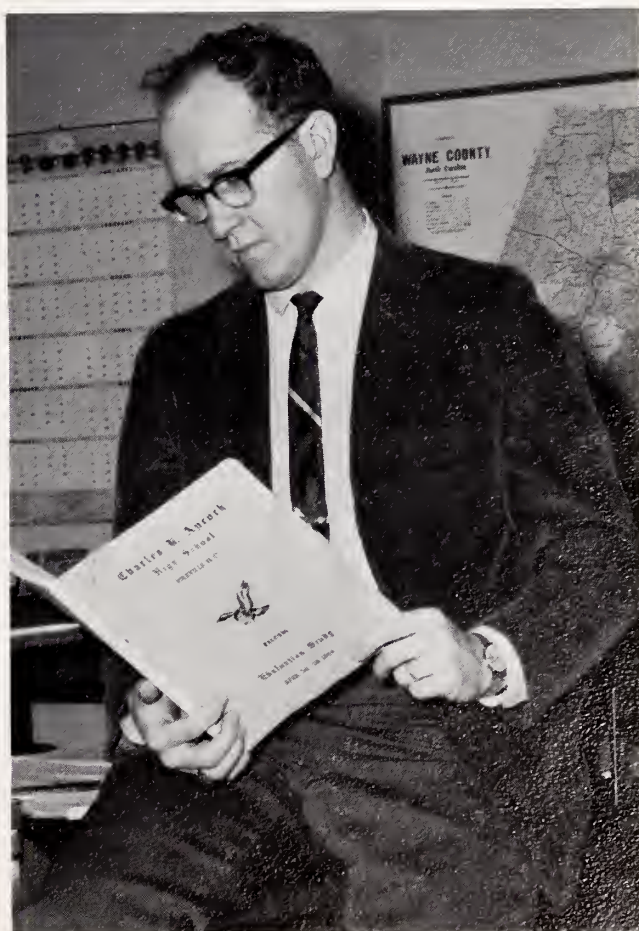

Principal Jerry Drew Paschal has understood our problems with great compassion, assisted us with patience, listened to our complaints with an admirable smile, inspired us with confidence, and encouraged our chances for success.

His determined efforts to make us satisfied and happy will always be remembered as one of our most precious high school memories. Without his assistance, Charles B. Aycock High School's accreditation might have been a future dream instead of a present reality.

So, with much respect, The Governor staff of 1965 proudly dedicates this edition to Mr. Jerry Drew Paschal, our principal.

School Boards Promote Accreditation

MR. HARDY TALTON, Chairman

The local school board was active in planning for and assisting in the accreditation plans of Aycock.

The board is composed of four members; one represents each of the feeder-school areas. Mr. Talton is from Nahunta; Mr. Bradshaw, Eureka; Mr. Smith, Belfast; and Mr. Hicks, Pikeville.

They hire the faculty. This job is especially important as the success of most classes depends upon the faculty member who is in charge of them.

MR. H. B. BRADSHAW

MR. JOHN L. SMITH

MR. OTTO HICKS

The Wayne County Board of Education initiated the idea of the Aycock accreditation before the school even opened. Wayne County Schools Superintendent R. S. Proctor also dreamed and probed into the possibilities.

Board members and Mr. Proctor attend events and visit often at Aycock.

They are completing plans for another consolidated high school, similar to Aycock, in the opposite, Southern, part of Wayne County.

Assistant Superintendent of Wayne County Public Schools Lacy Rogers, works with the County Superintendent R. S. Proctor.

Members of the County Board of Education meet at the County office regularly. They are Mr. Luby Casey, Mrs. C. B. Strickland, Mr. Elton Aycock, Mr. Worth Aycock, and Superintendent Proctor.

MR. W. D. JOYNER,
Dean of Students

MRS. MARGIE LANCASTER,
School Secretary

Guidance Counselor R. E. McNerney helps Derrell Horne.

The physical plant of a school must be kept at certain standards for a school to maintain its accreditation status. The three custodians were highly praised in the accreditation team's report for the excellent maintenance of Aycock. All have worked at the school for four years.

Curriculum, Classes Revealed

Improving Changes

Courses offered to students and the results of these courses were thoroughly evaluated many times to assure a top-quality curriculum. This involved much work for the faculty who had to continuously revise and evaluate their classes.

This work did not end with accreditation. A school must maintain its standards, and the faculty continued working to fulfill the needs and desires of the students and community.

English Courses Prepare

Students in a senior college preparatory class "labor diligently" in efforts to review and learn grammar they will be expected to know next year. About 65 seniors were placed in college-preparatory classes.

MRS. SEDALIA S. GREEN,
Senior English
Head of English Department

Standardizing and specializing have both been goals toward which the Aycock English department has strived.

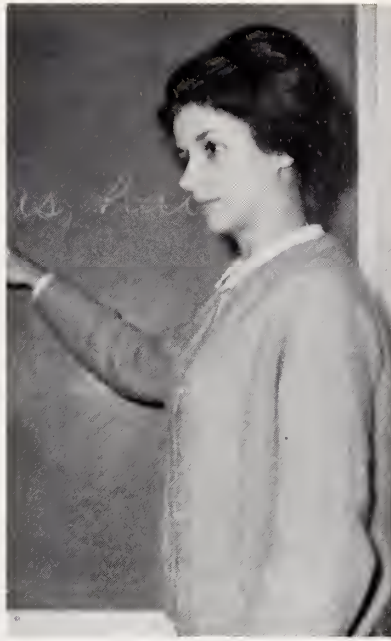

English classes were divided according to future plans and present abilities.

Knowledge of a list of 500 words was required for each student. The list was taken from college boards. The purpose is to increase one's vocabulary by at least two thousand words by the end of his senior year. Nine book reports were required of students; twelve for college-preparatory.

Some college-bound seniors also completed a course in advanced grammar and composition. They read and reviewed thirty books, wrote themes and critical reviews, learned and tried to apply correct writing standards, and completed vocabulary and analysis studies.

Five Science Courses Offered

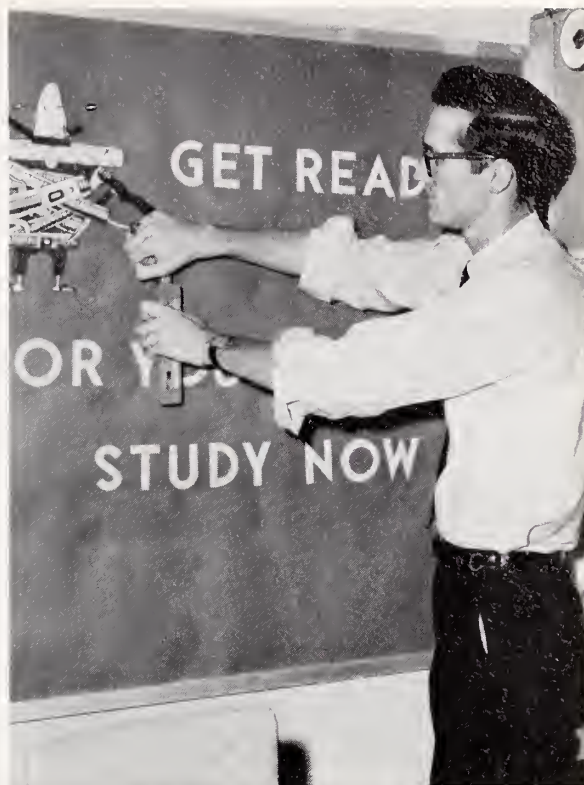

Chemistry students, Pat Barden, Jo Mitchell, Glen Ferrell, and Henry Holland burn camphor gum in the laboratory. The black smoke being produced is carbon.

MR. BILL BALANCE
Biology, General and Physical Sciences

MR. EVAN KEEL
Chemistry and Biology

All Aycock students are required to complete at least two science courses, one of which must be biology, before graduation.

Physics, chemistry, general and physical sciences, and biology are offered.

Mr. William Joyner (pictured in local administrators section) teaches the physics class.

Trips by science classes and groups have included local nature trails; North Carolina State College Engineers' Fair; lectures at Duke, State, and Chapel Hill, and the saline water plant.

MRS. CATHERINE GRIFFIN
Head of Science Department, Biology

Freshman, Beth Yelverton "just can't" seem to understand what her Algebra 1 book is trying to "get across."

MR. IRVING FORNECKER,
Math Instructor

Practice helps to make perfect, and public practice is especially effective.

Aycock mathematics teachers believe that an actual object of miniature helps students learn easier than a picture or description in a book. Geometry students prepare projects from their studies.

Students, La Von Matthews, Faye Overman, and Brenda Davis view and discuss geometry projects.

MR. WILLIAM WEBBER
Math Instructor

Algebra III was added to Aycock's math courses this year.

General math; Algebra I, II, and III; and contemporary geometry were offered to Aycock students.

Mr. William Joyner and Mrs. Catherine Griffin also teach math courses. (Their pictures are in other sections of the book.)

NATION

Since history is always "in the making", learning it is one thing and keeping up with it another. History teachers have urged students to read and study newspapers and magazines to keep up to date. Here Connie Forehand, Brenda Shay Lancaster, Wayne Aycok, and Dickie Tyndall read magazines which are in the room.

MR. RHELMA BOYKIN,
Head of Social Studies Department

MR. JIMMY HOWELL,
Teacher

Ricky Howell, Photographer

Derrell Horne, Photographer

Officials hoped that photography might be added as a class this year, but the accrediting committee said it could not.

Many students participated in the photography department and receive no scholastic credit for it. All are members of the photography club.

Equipment for the darkroom was purchased over the past four years by The Governor staff and the Falcon Photographers' Club.

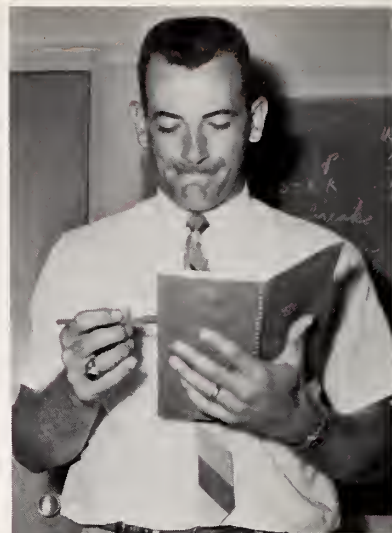

They develop pictures for the school yearbook and scrapbook as well as a few for individuals.

Derrell Horne and Ricky Howell have been head photographers for the past two years for The Governor staff. Mr. W. D. Joyner has been their teacher and advisor and has also done much photo work for the books.

Sheila Hales, Anne Perrcell, and Sandra Outland brush-up on volleyball techniques.

It's Tiring!

MR. BOBBY ATKINSON,
Head of Physical Ed. Department

MRS. PRISCILLA LOCKERMAN,

MR. DAVE McCLENNY

The Aycock library has grown to include 6,427 books, nine sets of encyclopedias, 438 film strips, two projectors, three tape recorders, one overhead projector, four individual film strip viewers and three desks for them, 106 recordings, two micro-projectors, one record player, one opaque projector, one photo copier, and one television.

The number of books has increased by 300 this year. The evaluating team recommended more recent copyright dates, and the library has been working on it.

The team praised the fact that magazines are kept for student research by saying it was one of the best magazine sections in any North Carolina high school. The library subscribes to 46 magazines and four newspapers.

Important items are clipped from newspapers and kept for student research.

MRS. RUTH THORNTON
Librarian

The Mind Develops . . .

Mrs. Lenore Cox helps Barbara Howell in the language laboratory.

Two foreign languages were offered this year: French and Latin. Two years of each was offered.

Mrs. Lenore Cox taught all the French classes and was also a teacher of English. Mr. Homer Tripplett taught Latin and English.

French students often used the language laboratory. Such usage teaches students to speak and listen to the language as well as to read it. The "lab" has individual desks; each has its own controls, microphone, and ear phones.

Second year French students completed scrapbooks about the country. They collected French items and clippings. Several students began writing to foreign high school students to learn more about foreign languages.

Mr. Robert Craft, Aycock music director, also teaches music classes for feeder school students.

Jim Dees, a junior, was one of the two Aycock students who participated in the all-state band clinic this year.

Freshman, Mike Fornecker, participated in the all-state band clinic at East Carolina College, too.

Band, Chorus Compose Music Department

Band and chorus classes were offered to Aycock students and grammar-grade students of feeder schools.

Mr. Robert Craft, Aycock music director, taught chorus to eighth grade students at Belfast, Nahunta, Eureka, and Pikeville elementary schools.

The marching band performed at all the home football games, accompanied by the majorettes.

The Falconettes and Falconaires performed at civic and social events throughout the state. Several ovations were given to the group when they performed at the North Carolina Principal's Convention in Raleigh. The group was selected above all others in the state to perform at the convention.

Members of the Falconettes and Falconaires practiced during the summer and one class period per day. They were selected by audition.

Aycock's Falconettes and Falconaires performed for many audiences this year. They practiced during class each day. The group also presented a musical, Down in the Valley. Mr. Robert Craft directs part of the group. They are Timothy Howell, Michael Hinnant, George Morris, Billy Newsome, Ronald Smith, Dennis Langston, Wilma Futrell, Lee Jones, Nan Lancaster, Tommie Ann Forehand, Faye Beamon, and Brenda Gail Sykes. Timothy and Alice Carroll Best had leading roles in the musical, Aycock's first such performance.

Business Diplomas Offered

The business education department includes two full-time and two part-time teachers.

Mr. Bobby Atkinson and Mr. Rhelma Boykin, along with Mr. J. K. Thompson and Mr. Donald Edwards teach a total of eight different business courses.

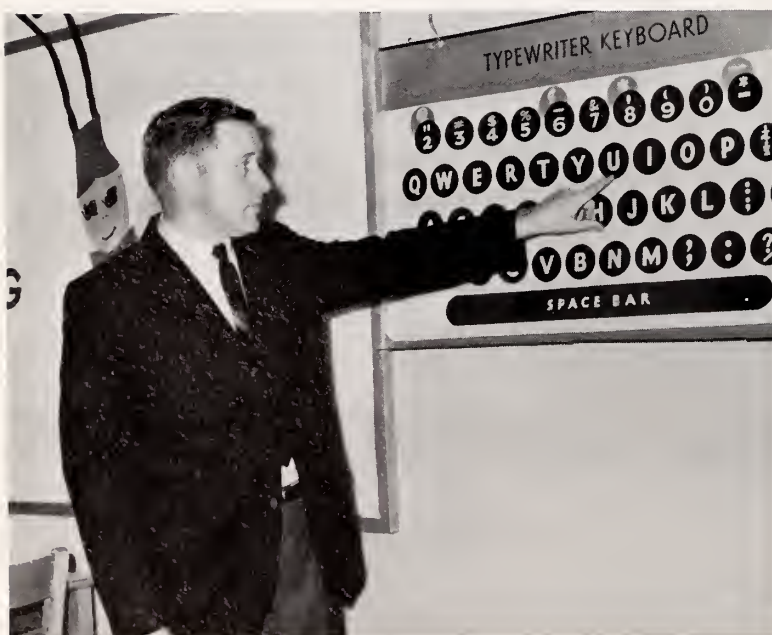

The accreditation reviewing team suggested the addition of machines to the department. The total number now includes fifty-four typewriters, an adding machine, and a calculating machine.

About two hundred students are enrolled in the eight courses offered: Typing I and II, Bookkeeping I and II, Shorthand I and II, general business, and notehand-typing.

Department head, Mr. Thompson, stated, "We feel that our students are ready for employment after graduation, but many of them continue their training at business schools."

MR. J. K. THOMPSON,
Department Head

MR. DONALD EDWARDS,
Instructor

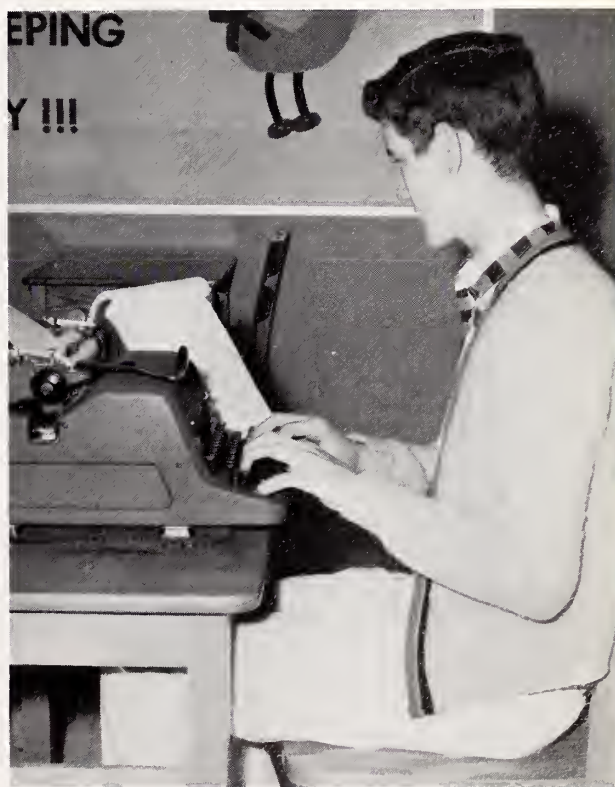

Shorthand students learn that the subject they take is one which may determine the secretary's success in the business world. Two years of shorthand is offered to Aycock students. Notehand, a simplified form, is offered for college-bound students.

Pat Barden, a senior, works on a bookkeeping practice kit. Each student in the course has a kit with supplies similar to those in a normal business firm.

Cecil Sykes copies an exercise from the typing book. Two years of typing are offered to students.

Students study the organization of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) in the classroom. Danny Casey, Cyrus Talton, DeWayne Eakes, Bill Wiggs, Michael Aycok, and Billy Ray Thomas serve as officers in this class.

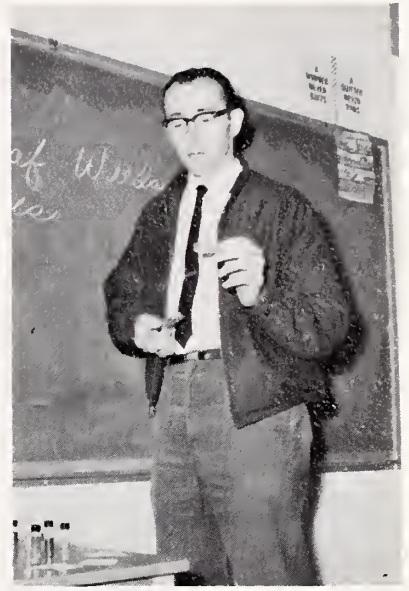

MR. WELDON FAIRCLOTH,
Teacher

MR. JESSE GRIMES,
Teacher

Mr. Ross Wadkins taught "girls' agriculture," or ornamental horticulture, for half of the year.

Mr. Herman Croom, department head, judges seeds.

Vocational Training Offered

A total of 97 boys and 47 girls completed courses in the agricultural department.

A revision of the courses offered to boys and addition of a girls' course were major improvements of the department.

Girls were able to take ornamental horticulture. In it they learned the major shrubbery for their own homes, how to root and transplant plants, and how to landscape their homes. They made field trips to local gardens and Laurel Lake Nursery.

The department owns thirteen pieces of power equipment. According to Mr. Herman Croom, department head, "We have probably the best electrical and oxyacetylene equipment in the state." There are also many pieces of hand tools.

The vocational-agriculture department sponsors the local FFA chapter which is the largest rural youth farm program in the United States. They have worked to improve the local chapter.

Soil testing was included in the first year study of agriculture. Members of the classes were required to send a certain number of samples to be tested. Allan Bedford works on his here.

Learning Homemaking Skills

A total of 93 girls and six boys took home economics this year. Family relations, another division of the department, involved 87 students.

Home economics I, II, III, and family relations are offered by the department's two teachers.

Girls in home ec. study seven main areas: foods and nutrition, clothing, housing, child development, health, management, and family relations.

Family relations classes are co-educational. They discuss much of the time and try to help each other and gain for themselves.

The fashion show was a major project of the department. Each student in home ec. participated by showing the garment he had made.

Re-decorating and remodeling were other major improvements. Orange and green and blue and green color schemes were used in the work which the girls themselves completed.

The department sponsors the Future Homemakers of America (FHA). A new project was initiated by the chapter this year, the "Miss Aycock" pageant.

Five girls received their state homemaker's degree: Brenda Edmundson, Nan Lancaster, Cheryl Pierce, Beverly Sasser, and Frances Sasser.

The home economics students remodeled the two classrooms this year. Approximate cost of the process was $100. Modern color schemes were used. The teachers supervised. Girls agreed that the experience will be useful in their own homes.

Winners in the department's spring fashion show included Peggy Pittman, Agatha Hinson, Keith Chase, Marsha Thorne, Christa

Chandler, Ann Herring, and Ellen Jones.

MRS. ELIZABETH SCOTT,
Department Head

MISS THERESA KORNEGAY,
Teacher

Mr. Ed Crawley teaches industrial arts and mechanical drawing.

Industrial arts and mechanical drawing were offered to all Aycock students this year.

Four girls were among those who completed the mechanical drawing course.

Industrial arts students learn how to make useful items and do actual work. They make lamps, book cases, gun racks, tables, and other items for school and home.

Melody Lane, Barbara Casey, Wayne Pittman, and Donald Edmundson study drivers' education in the classroom. There is more to driving, than driving, it seems.

Drivers' education classes were plagued with too many students. Some could only complete "class work" and not "road work." There was only one teacher and one car.

The number of students taking the course has increased since such a class is required for North Carolina teen-age licensed drivers.

Mr. Ralph Becton taught drivers' education for half of the school year.

Thirteen may seem an unlucky number to some, but the thirteen Aycock journalism students find it works successfully in the production of the school newspaper, The Educator.

The class published two eight-page and six four-page tabloid editions of the paper, which appears monthly in The Goldsboro News-Argus.

They organized and sponsor the Governor Charles B. Aycock Society which was a suggestion made by a local editor during journalism day, an annual event of the class.

The National Quill and Scroll Critical Service cited the group for outstanding promotion of the school's accreditation drive.

Anne Lewis has served two years as editor of The Educator.

Class Publishes Newspapers

Bill Rand, Debbie Forehand, and Jerry Wayne Waddell review a recent edition with journalism teacher, Mr. E. L. Roberts. He also

are kept in a file for study and reference.

Dramacons' Quality, Quantity

Two three-act and four one-act plays were presented this year by the Dramacons who were organized last year.

The approximately twenty members of the class were taught and directed by Mrs. Sedalia S. Green who is also head of the English department.

The group's first production was Bull in a China Shop, a well-known comedy which has been produced on the Alfred Hitchcock Series. Actors and actresses in it were: Anne Lewis, Mary Sue Bogue, Cheryl Langley, Faye Beamon, Marcia Edmundson, Billy Newsome, Calvin Smith, Steve Perkins, Ronnie Thompson, Jerry Wayne Waddell, and Dottie Alley. A houseful of old ladies were killing each other to attract the attention of a young, handsome Irish cop.

Pride and Prejudice, a two-year dream of the group, was the second major production. Adapted from the Victorian age novel, characters were Marcia Edmundson, Ronnie Thompson, Gary Fahnestock, Jerry Wayne Waddell, Mary Sue Bogue, Cheryl Langley, Susan Daniels, Mary Ann Kearney, Anne Lewis, Faye Beamon, James Maples, Alice Carroll Best, and Dottie Alley. It involved two sets of scenery. About four hundred dollars was netted from the production.

"Two Lollipops Are Better Than One" was a musical skit presented to the Goldsboro American Legion convention and the student body during the spring festival and PTA.

"The Death of a Hired Man" was presented to the PTA.

"Feudin' Mountain Boys" and the "Summons of Sariel" were also parts of the group's spring festival. One was a hillbilly play; the other was a religious play about the antechamber of death. Marcia Edmundson and Faye Scott were the student directors.

The Dramacons have seen plays at East Carolina, Atlantic Christian, and North Carolina Wesleyan Colleges as well as on Broadway. They made a trip to New York during the Thanksgiving holidays.

"I'm next!" exclaims Mary Sue Bogue as she prepares to prove to the others that she is no murderer. Marcia Edmundson just can't believe her, and Cheryl Langley looks on in disbelief. Faye Beamon and Anne Lewis hide their eyes so no one will know the true murderer. The scene is from Bull in a China Shop.

Rises

The scene of "Feudin' Mountain Boys" was the interior of a house.

Cheryl Langley, Billy Newsome, Anne Lewis, and Andy Beamon discuss their love affairs in Pride and Prejudice. About 35 costumes were involved in the production.

"The Summons of Sarel" was a religious drama. The stage was dimly lit, and the entire stage area was used.

Clubs Are Offered

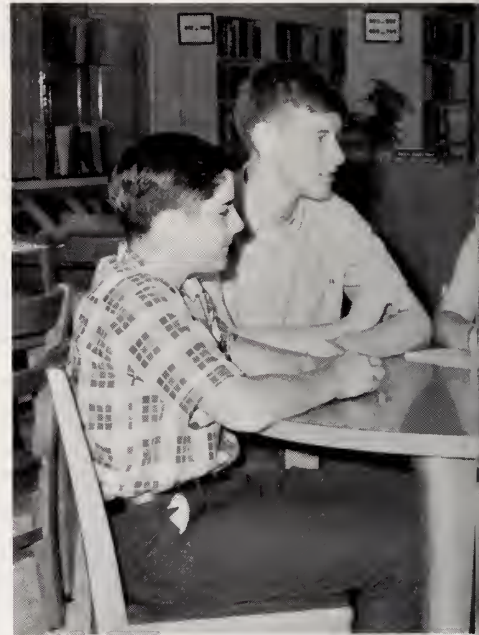

Almost thirty clubs are offered to Aycock students for membership including honorary, service, and interest clubs. The accreditation reviewing team remarked about the excellent variety of clubs offered. Clubs meet during specially called periods.

Student Council members celebrated the final word of acceptance on the accreditation with a decorated cake. They sponsored a club-of-the-month award.

Two new coaches joined the Aycock staff this year, Mr. Dave McClenney (left) and Mr. Jimmy Howell (right). Coach Bobby Atkinson began his third year at Aycock. All coached football. Mr. McClenney was the head coach.

Emotions are drawn taut by the strain of a grueling game. As desire for victory intensifies, the atmosphere is heavy with the belligerent attitude of spectators and the unremitting efforts of the team.

From September to May, the athletes have brought honor and recognition to Aycock's students; and Aycock gave character and sportsmanship to all those concerned whether they were members on the field or in the stands.

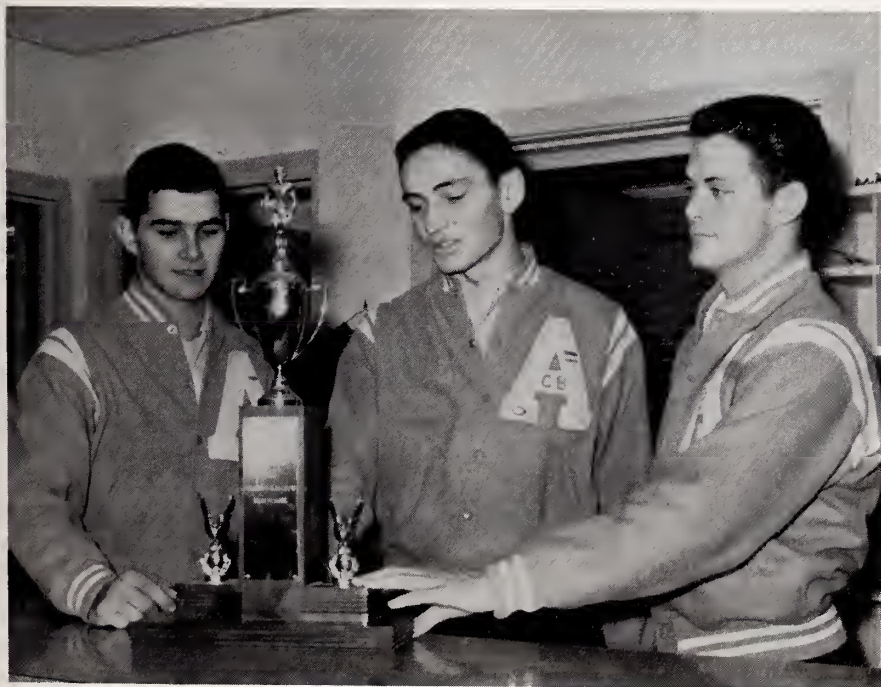

The teams played with a drive and determination which meant victory to them many times. This has been a good year at Aycock, and I am pleased to have been a part of it.

Falcons tied for second place in the Eastern Plains Conference. Aycock also received the sportsmanship trophy.

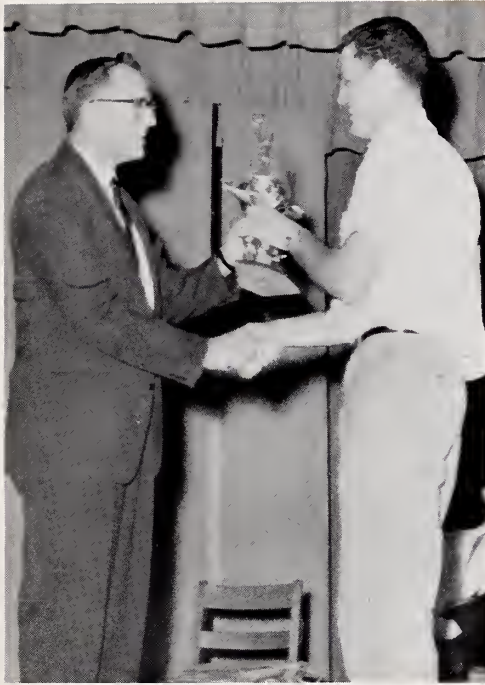

As the Season Ends . . .

Albert Elmore fights to score "just one more" for Aycock.

David Earl Lewis romps up for another basket while George Morris and Allen Hicks watch, ready with assistance.

Booster Club President O. J. Howell presents Most Outstanding Senior Boy Athlete award to Donald Thomas. Thomas was named honorable mention on the All-American football team.

Brenda Lou Goodman received the Most Outstanding Senior Girl Athlete award this year.

A live falcon was donated to the school. After several attempts to ship a bird which ended in death, a final try succeeded. Principal Jerry Paschal helped train the bird which was named Charlie B. the First.

Year With Record of 13 Wins

Rachel Tillman tries hard for rebound.

Jump balls add points, too.

Coach Jimmy Howell and Co-Captains Rachel Tillman and Brenda Lou Goodman; both captains are seniors.

The Aycock girls' basketball team had a successful season of thirteen wins this year. They feel determination, spirit, and the desire to win were the most important factors in their success. Winning games was not their only accomplishment. They played a major role in obtaining the Sportsmanship Trophy given to Aycock for the second consecutive year.

Members of the 1965 squad: Martie Bunn, Beverly Perkins, Brenda Goodman, Rachel Tillman, Beth Yelverton, Mary Ellen Beamon, Georgia Lawrence, Betty Carraway, Brenda Edmundson, Edith Jones, Suzanne

Perspiration, Pop, and Persistence

This year it was to have been "All the way big blue," and it almost was . . . all the way to the state baseball two A championship . . .

The conference title was "all sewed up." The district championship was a "wee bit" harder, but at last the team achieved it!

A game with Seventy-First High School was scheduled. After two innings, Aycock led 4-0. A cloud zoomed overhead and ripped. Rain tickets were distributed as anxious and anticipating fans left planning to return to see Aycock win.

Something h a p p e n e d; what? No one will ever know, but Aycock lost 6-0. Tears streamed down the faces of the fans as they trudged out, saying, "Next year it'll be different."

Donald Thomas hustles to retrieve loose ball!

One of the team's offensive weapons, the bunt, is executed by Jerry Wayne Waddell.

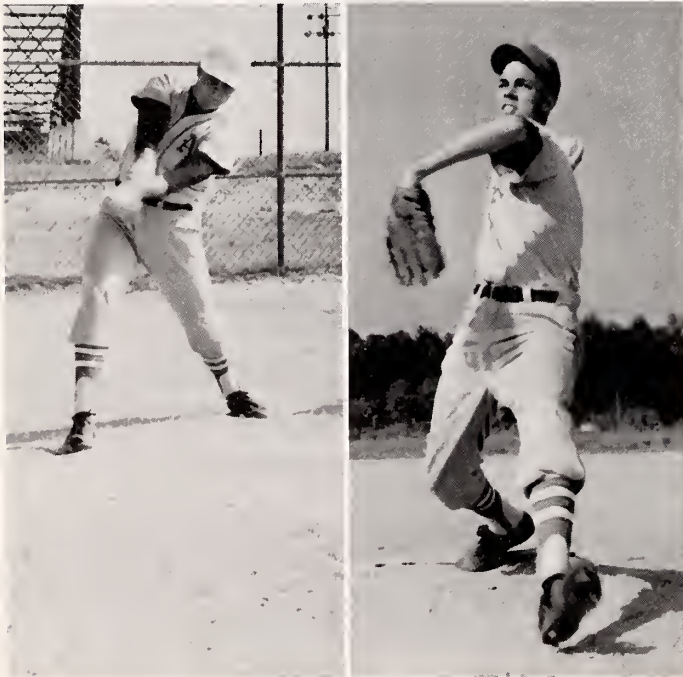

Third base coach, James Maples, teams up with LaVon Mathews in getting one base closer to home.

It Takes Guts

Allen Hicks warms up as Timothy Howell "lets her go."

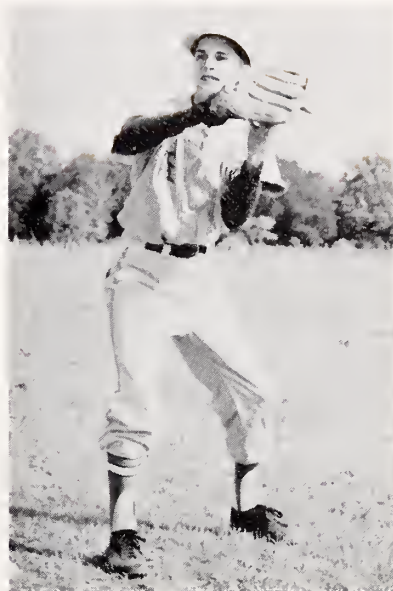

and a Wad of Tobacco

Eutice Mayo "warms up" for a homer.

Wham! It looks like a winner!

And it's the same "old story"! "Tough luck!" says fielder Kenneth Satterfield.

Coach Bobby Atkinson and Jerry Wayne Waddell discuss the season and admire the conference trophy.

Aycock will lose these senior players: Eutice Mayo, Jerry Waddell, George Morris, Cyrus Talton, Timothy Howell, James Maples, Danny Casey, Bobby Poulk and Donald Thomas.

Track for Competition,

Dwain Beamon set two school records this year: five minutes and nine seconds in the mile and two min. and 12 sec. in the 880.

Johnny Green, a senior, heaves a shot-put. He contested school records all year.

The last seconds can mean the difference in winning or losing.

Arnold Futrell, Jim Dees, Johnny Green, and Jerry Massey line up for the 440 yard dash.

Coordination, and Conditioning

Billy Newsome is ready to try to set records in the discus throw.

"Newsome" participated in most of the track events. He is a senior.

The track team participated in seven meets, winning first in one and second in two.

Dwain Beamon and Eddie Radford were participants in the district finals. Neither qualified for state. Dwain set two school records, one in the mile and one in the 880. Eddie set the school record in shot-put by throwing 39 feet and 10 inches.

Activities Are Many

and Varied at Aycock

Assemblies, dances, banquets, parties, festivities, a prom, elections, drama, concerts, pep rallies, intramurals, initiations, crownings . . . with these activities and more—each student was able to find at least some of them interesting.

School is learning, and social adjustment—gained through activities—is a part of this learning.

The Aycock Marching Band led the school's first homecoming parade.

Cheerleaders Boost School

CHEERLEADERS

Carolyn Aycock, head; Barbara Smith, Patricia Ferrell, Barbara Howell, Linda Price, assistant head; Judy Pope, Cheryl Langley, Faye Overman, Sandra Edgerton.

Spirit

Cheerleaders are a vital part of the athletic program.

Spirit boosts the team.

Judy Austin; head, Peggy Pittman, Joyce Jones, Nona Lawrence, Sara Mercer, Sara Sykes, Judy Mitchell.

Homecoming Queen

Miss Cheryl Langley

Bonfire was biggest ever.

Half-time activities included crowning of the Queen.

Homecoming was the biggest in the history of Charles B. Aycok. The spirit was boosted by skits given by each class. Classes and clubs also entered floats in the first Homecoming Parade sponsored by the Student Council. The highlight of homecoming was the Homecoming Queen, Cheryl Langley.

Juniors win float competition with "Skunk the "Skins."

Marcia Edmundson discusses future plans of the Christian Society with the new members. Many assemblies of this type were held.

Majorettes this year were Betty Howell, Phyllis Hicks, Jo Mitchell, Mary Sue

Nearly all students participated in the lunchroom program. Mrs. Inez Smith was the manager.

Suppers such as this buffet supper were often sponsored by groups. This one was to raise funds for the yearbook.

Bogue, Rachel Tillman, Faye Lane, Ann Holland, and Ann Outland.

Snow time was another high light of the school activities. Mr. Evan Keel prepares to help the bus drivers leave early because of weather conditions.

Carol Lee, Gail Smith, Mary Sue Bogue, Faye Evans, Suzanne Hayes, Mary Ann Kearney, and Cheryl Langley were among the many juniors who worked late preparing the annual junior-senior prom.

Many dances were held at Aycock this year. The annual junior-senior prom, the Sadie Hawkins dance, and the Christmas dance were the highlights of the year.

Sock-hops were sponsored by several clubs after football games to help raise funds for projects.

Albert Elmore and Sherry Long were named King and Queen of the prom.

Christa Candler, Barbara Howell, Becky Lancaster, Vickie Best, and Sandra Aycock serve Ricky Howell and Derrell Horne at the prom. The theme was Shangri-La.

The Varsity Club sponsored a fund-raising Sadie Hawkins dance, the first ever held at Aycock.

Charlie Satterfield, a freshman, and Claudia Braswell, a senior, were selected as Mr. and Miss Merry Christmas at a dance sponsored by the yearbook staff.

Contestants and winners in the Mr. and Miss Merry Christmas contest included Jimmy S. Davis, Cheryl Langley, James Horne, Judy Pope, Satterfield, Claudia Braswell, Agatha Hinson, Kenneth Forehand, and Faye Overman.

Number of Dramas

The music department sponsored a talent review. Acts from the four feeder schools participated. Marcia Edmundson and Timothy Howell were among those from Aycock in it. They presented several songs from Oliver.

Sharon Bass, Mary Ann Kearney, Ronnie Thompson, Cheryl Langley, and Billy Newsome played in "Feudin' Mountain Boys". It was a part of the Dramacons' and Music Department's spring festival.

"Down in the Valley" by Kurt Weil was a one-act musical presented by the Falconettes and Falconaires. Alice Carroll Best and Timothy Howell had leading roles.

Increases

Mary Ann Kearney and Anne Lewis were two characters in Pride and Prejudice. The production was one of the group's most outstanding.

Dottie Alley, Billy Newsome, Marcia Edmundson, and Ronnie Thompson were among other actors in Bull in a China Shop which was the first production of Dramacons this year.

In Pride and Prejudice Marcia Edmundson had "quite a time" dissuading James Maples, her suitor.

Bruton Is Speaker

Junior marshals served at all commencement exercises: Carl Kirby, Henry Holland, Sherwood Godwin, Chuck Forehand, Geneva Hollowell, Faye Scott, Jimmy S. Davis, Judy Mitchell, Mary Barefoot, Suzanne Hayes head, Ray Parker, Gloria Ingram, Cherry Rose, Bobby Russell, Carol Lee, Jimmy G. Davis, Phyllis Lancaster, Carolyn Reeves, Ben Lane, Phyllis Hicks, Allen Hicks, Faye Lane, Dwain Beamon, Ann Outland, and Neal Blow.

Mr. Robert Bruton was the speaker.

Baccalaureate was held inside even though commencement exercises were outside. Approximately fifteen minutes was required for the processional.

Class

The final farewell for many took place immediately after graduation. Students had to return caps and gowns to homeroom teachers.

Commencement ended when the class sang the school song. As students received their diplomas, they lined up at one end of the bleachers. Music director Bob Craft directed the song for the 145 graduates.

of 1965 Is Most Unique

Cheryl Pierce and Judy Radford enter the school crying after commencement exercises.

The class of 1965 was unique in many ways. They were the largest class ever graduated from Aycok, the first to hold exercises outside, and the first to complete four years of study at Aycok.

Graduates totaled 145. The commencement exercise was held June 4 in the football stadium.

Mr. David Henderson, third Congressional district representative to the House of Representatives, was the speaker. He emphasized that the youth of today are not "going to the dogs."

The bleachers in the stadium seat two thousand. At least five hundred had to stand. Graduates sat on the first two rows of the bleachers. Paula and Jeff Holland were mascots.

The group wore white gowns. Honor graduates (students whose scholastic average was at least 90) wore gold tassels and ropes. Others wore blue tassels.

Honor graduates totaled 22. They walked first in scholastic order. Others followed according to height.

Classes Work Together

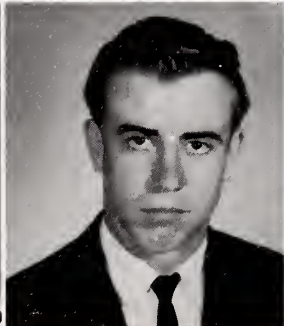

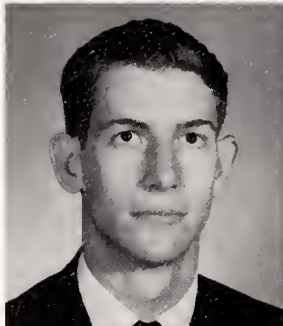

for Spirit Boost

Through competition and co-operation the classes at Aycock have grown closer. Homecoming revealed a keen sense of rivalry as classes strived for top honors.

Intramurals were other scenes of enthusiastic spirit.

The approximate enrollment at Aycock was 550.

Juniors aimed for higher achievements and seemed to succeed. The only two required courses for juniors were United States history and English Three, a study of American literature. The class entered a skit in the homecoming assembly. Their float, "Skunk the Skins," received first place in the homecoming parade. The group sold fire extinguishers to raise money for the junior-senior prom which they sponsored.

The second year of high school is biology; English II, complete with William Shakespeare's Julius Caesar; thoughts of a career and, possibly a college; dreams of next year's junior-senior prom and its financial "difficulties". The sophomore struggles to gain achievement for himself and the school. This year the sophomores began a money raising project for next year's prom, presented a skit before homecoming, and entered a float in the Homecoming Parade.

Beginning high school was a thrill for most Aycock freshmen. After a few weeks they adapted to changing classes, crowded halls, a larger building, more extracurricular opportunities, and harder study. They elected officers after the first six weeks. During the year they also presented a Homecoming skit and entered a float in the Homecoming parade.

Beth Yelverton represented the freshmen as their homecoming princess. She was escorted by George Morris.

Community Backs School's

Drive for Accreditation

The school community of Charles B. Aycock High School has been a great asset to our student body and faculty. It is through them that our school has advanced to its present stage and it is to them that we look for future advancements.

Pat Smith, Dottie Alley, Alice Best, "Pete" Williford, Pat Barden and Anne Lewis.
